AIM Statement: ISRAELI TERRORISM EXPOSES BRITAIN TO HARM

AIM warns of Israeli terrorism fueling extremists against innocents in Britain

Israeli Terrorism has once again shown it's face of aggression against the innocent people of Lebanon. On Sunday 30th July at 1 a.m., an Israeli bunker bomb was dropped on a shelter housing women and children who were seeking refuge from the continuous bombing. As a result, more than fifty innocent civilians were killed in what is now being labelled the second Qana massacre since ironically this isn't the first time this same village has faced such atrocities from Israeli aggression.

AIM reiterates its condemnation of these crimes of ethnic cleansing and calls on the international community to take immediate action against these heinous acts of mass killing and collective punishment.

Israel, an unlawful Zionist entity has always and continues to bring instability to the Middle East and the global arena. We feel that the only end to these tragic events rests in the hands of those who confront occupation and aspire to the release of the many thousands of hostages that remain in Israeli prisons.

AIM would like to emphasise that the British government's blind support for the United States in its unilateral policies, along with its bizarre silence, contrary to the unanimous demands for a ceasefire will inevitably add to the ever growing anger felt around the world. This will also fuel the extremists who wish to use such opportunities to carry out aggression against innocent civilians in Britain – something we dread to see happen again.

Consequently, AIM urges the British government to take the necessary steps to avoid such a turn of events by conforming to the requests of the international community to aid an immediate unconditional ceasefire.
